The north wing is an early gambrel roof building which has a large central chimney. There are two bays on each side of the chimney. The unusual feature of this house is that the rear upper pitch of the roof is elongated, producing an asymmetrical gambrel roof. The entire dwelling is covered in barn red asbestos siding. To the southeast is a square two story addition with wide overhang and jerkin-head roof, which appears to date from the trun of this century. Kennet Co.
